Hancock oil, gas lease prospect prompts hearing

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

A public hearing regarding the proposed leasing by an unnamed company or individual of some 16,000 acres of state-claimed swamp areas in southern Hancock County for oil and gas exploration is scheduled Wednesday night in Bay St. Louis.

Gary Cuevas, special projects officer of the State Bureau of Marine Resources in Long Beach, confirmed Monday that the hearing is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. at the County Courthouse's Board of Supervisors' second floor meeting room.

He explained the meeting will air comments regarding a State Department of Natural Resources request to change the Coastal Wetlands Use Plan to designate another Hancock swamp area as a 'special use district-leased wetlands' to allow the exploration

Cuevas said the proposed change involves roughly 16,000 wetland acres located 'below the mean high tide' from Bayou Cadet westward to Port Bienville Industrial Park.

The only other special use district on the Mississippi Gulf Coast is a Hancock wetland area near the mouth of Jourian River which includes property in the 'Cinque Bambini Partnership vs. the State' land ownership suit, Cuevas

Although a Hancock Chancery Court lecided in favor of the state, the private landowners involved are attempting to reverse the decision in a State Supreme Court appeal to retain ownership of their land which Mississippi now claims as 'public trust wetlands.'

The mean high tide mark was established in the Chancery Court decision after the state conceded during the trial to accept several boundaries established by Bambini marine surveyors.

Cuevas noted the Jourdan River special use district was established for Saga and Phillips Petroleum Co.'s to lease the area, but he did not know who requested leases in the proposed use change area.

John D. Kellis, Mineral Lease Division chief of the department in Jackson, Tuesday morning said that federal laws allow the government agency not to disclose at this time the name of the company or individual interested in leasing the southern Hancock wetland

He reported if no significant objections are received during the hearing and the department's recommendation is accepted by the State Commission on Wildlife Conservation and Natural Resources Commission, the lands would be offered for leasing in early October.

Kellis said the resources commission would set a minimum bid the state would accept for the lease.

He added that the state's legal advertisements seeking bids would include provisions for any 'questionable' boundaries as a result of the Cinque Bambini Cuevas said the Wednesday hearing will be chaired by Dr. Richard Leard, BMR director, and Jerry Mitchell, BMR Coastal Program Division chief.

The hearing will include the bureau's standard procedure of requiring those who wish to make comments to fill out and submit name cards to the meeting chairmen, Cuevas reported

Written comments will be accepted by the BMR until July 13, he added

New animal shelter to open its doors to the homeless

By JUNE M. HEYDT

After long struggles, controversies and sheer determination by the Hurrane Society, the Hancock Animal Shelter will open Saturday with a dedication and ribbon cutting ceremony at 10 a.m.

The new facility on Gulfside Drive. Waveland is designed to serve the three tovernments in the Hancock area. Bay St. Louis, Waveland, and the county.

Cel Dumestre, president of the Humane Society, said, "Back in 1972 when the shelter was located on the Alcan property, I adopted a dog. When I went to pick up the dog and noticed how bad the conditions were I joined the Humane Society with my main purpose being to help build a decent shelter for these animals.'

"Several people helped to start the society such as Mrs. Charles Cantrell who gave the initial money to begin the organization." Dumestre continued.

"Mrs. Clifford (Lolly) Backlund sacrificed her time for years working with the society," Dumestre said adding, "Shirley Cox and Eleanor McFie also worked very hard for the organizagovernments to agree to sponsor a shelter. We made appeals for the initial construction funds and each of the governments donated $5,000."

'The commission was then organized, it consisted of the same people who are on it today."

"This same commission, in an effort to save the taxpayers money, spent eight months trying to get the Navy Construction Battalion in Gulfport to errect the building for us. They finally agreed and started construction on the banks of the Bay St. Louis sewage pond," said Dumestre.

"A petition came from somewhere, we don't know where, against the building of the shelter at that site," Dumestre stated.

"Because of this petition, we lost money, free engineering and free labor. and, of course, the shelter."

Dumestre continued, "It was at this point that the entire commission resign-

Judge Thomas rules fee imposed on bondsmen is unconstitutional

By JUNE M. HEYDT

Circuit Court Judge James Thomas ruled in favor of Sidney A. Sandoz, a professional bail bondsman, who filed suit against Ronald A. Peterson, Hancock County sheriff, and Jerry D. Heitzmann, circuit clerk, on June 12.

Sandoz claimed that a law, approved at the end of the 1963 legislature, leclaring that a bondsman must pay a ice of one percent of the amount collected on each bond, or $5, whichever is greater, was unconstitutional. Peterson and Heitzmann were the oflicers of the court responsible for collecting the fee.

The suit was called a friendly one because it was not directed against Peterson or Hetizmann personally, but against the law itself.

Judge Thomas ruled that the law is capricions, unreasonable, discriminatory and conflicting. He ordered that the sheriff, circuit clerk and any officer of any court and those similarly situated are prohibited from collecting the fee contained in the bill. Nicholas M. Hass, attorney for Sandoz, said, "We appreciate the fact that the court ruled on it before implementation of the law July 1." "One of the things the proof showed was that this fee imposed only on the professional bailbondsman would have taken more than 17 percent of the bondsman's average income in addition to all his other business expenses."

Sandoz said, "I'm just glad that the judge ruled in our favor. I think that the way the law was written was discriminatory in the fact that it only singled out professional bondsmen and not insurance companies and their agents who also write bail bonds."

"It would have cost a substantial amount of my earnings-upwards to as much as 25 percent," Sandoz added.

Heitzmann said, "Based on my knowledge of that statute, I feel that Judge Thomas gave the only decision he could have. It is my intent to comply with Judge Thomas's order."

"Personally, I feel the judge was right in his decision," said Peterson and added, "We will abide by the judge's decision."

"When there were no objections to the site, the Humane Society went back to each of the governments and asked for and received an additional $2,500."

"The city of Waveland then entered into a contract for the construction of this shelter, which is opening Saturday," Dumestre related.

"The Humane Society, before we're finished will have put approximately $4,000 into the shelter, but we still need for these animals, rather than having to put them to sleep," said Dumestre. He also added, "We want to get membership, but particularly young membership. There is nothing more rewarding for a young person than the love and affection the animals will shower on them for their assistance." "The shelter will not charge people for adopting animals. However, the shelter does want a guarantee that the people who do adopt a pet will see that the pet receives the proper shots," Dumestre concluded.

The humane society is a non-profit organization and in order to offer the financial assistance for spaying and neutering, depends on donations received from the community.

The society will stage a rummage sale on July 9 at the Waveland Community Center. Donations of salable items are currently being accepted for that event.

While the term is not related to the temperature, it does portray the interest and enthusiasm of a statewide effort of Hold Our Topsoil.

Local, state and federal agencies have joined hands in a concentrated effort to slow or stop the loss of valuable topsoil through erosion.

State committees and subcommittees have been formed and plans made for a HOT educational campaign to culminate in a statewide field day in October. State Committee Chairman Jim Buck Ross, agriculture commissioner, said Mississippi has the third highest annual soil loss rate in the nation. Tennessee and Missouri rank first and second.

"Mississippi cropland is losing 10.9 tons of topsoil per acre per year," he said. "This amounts to more than 120 million tons of high quality topsoil lost annually.

A strange acronym - HOT To help reduce soil erosion, the statewide field day to be held on three adjacent farms near Bolton in Hinds County will demonstrate measures farmers, landowners and others can take in preventing "The demonstration farms will illustrate conservation measures on land uses incropland, pastureland, woodland and wilflife areas," he said.

"Some practices on the farm have already been applied. During tours on the field day, visitors can see how the stablished practices are saving the soil and also see equipment in operation preparing additional practices."

Capital Gains Dilemma

Question: I am facing a real dilemma. I sold my home the first of last year and had planned to purchase another home. I was told that if I do not buy a more expensive house, I will have to pay taxes on the profit I made in my last home.

Many people are facing what could be described as a capital gains dilemma -that is, pressure to purchase a new home to avoid a tax on the gain from the sale of a previous home. Because of record high interest rates and high home prices, many of the sale of the first principal qualifying for a home loan.

Is this true? L.S., Petal.

Answer: Dear L.S.:

If the new house costs less than the first house, the taxpayer may be responsible for a tax on the capital gain. For example, assume that Mary

Smith purchases a house in 1980 for $50,000. This is called the basis price. In 1983, she sells this house for $90,000. Within 24 months, she buys a condominium for $70,000.

Answer: $20,000 ($90,000 %

$70,000 = $20,000). Her basis remains $50,000, which was the purchase price of the original house. What is her capital gain if she, instead, buys a house costing $100,000?

"Answer: There is no capital gain because the new house costs more than she received when she sold her first house.

Further, the new basis is the old basis increased by the net house. What is the new basis?

Answer: $60,000 ($50,000 is the

Today a very deserving person will be honored for her sincere dedication to students for many years.

We are speaking about My Emily deMontluzin, who retired from the Bay St. Louis Separate Municipal School System after teaching Latin and French for many years.

There are many school teachers we have had an opportunity to know over the years, and Mrs. deMontluzin has stood far above the crowd.

A motorcade is scheduled from her residence to Christ Episcopal's Virginia Hall, where a reception in her honor is planned by former students and friends.

Over the years we have covered many of her 'extras' for students, and have never known a teacher to be as dedicated as Mrs. deMontluzin.

We know her students and friends, like us, wish her well in her travels, and want her to know how much we have appreciated our association with her over the years.

The reports we have heard from some sport shrimpers have been very bad since the season opened on Tuesday.

Some catches were based on so many gallons of fuel per shrimp, as we know of one shrimper who caught all of one shrimp, another two, and a third who netted four shrimp on three drags.

We know the opening of the Bonne Carre Spillway has caused too much fresh water and hope conditions will improve for the fall shrimping season.

The reports of persons catching shrimp came from those who traveled outside the islands, away from the fresh water.

The closing of the spillway is good news, but it will take awhile for our waters to get back to normal.

It will probably be three to four years before our local oyster productions will recover.

It is amazing as to how many people who have been affected by nature this year. Floods, mud slides, and re-flooding seems to have been the plight of so many persons.

There will apparently be many folks using fireworks over the long 4th weekend.

We urge everyone to please be extremely careful when using fireworks. Every year there are so many injuries, many of which cannot be repaired; and even accidental house fires caused by fireworks.

It hurts to hear about little children losing an eye, fingers or hearing because of fireworks accidents.

Parents, please supervise children, if you let them use fireworks.

On July 1, stronger Drinking While Driving laws go into effect for the State of Mississippi.

We understand the state troopers, Bay St. Louis and Waveland Police departments will have extra officers out checking for DUI's.

It is our understanding that there will be at least a 24-hour stay in jail for persons caught while driving under the influence starting tomorrow.

If you are celebrating and have a little too much to drink, please have someone sober drive you home.

Far too many people are killed because of persons drinking and driving.

We hope everyone will have a safe July 4th weekend.

The everyday thunderstorms should be considered by all fishermen, especially those who venture out into the Mississippi Sound.

There will be many folks fishing for the Mississippi Deep Sea Rodeo which starts Friday and goes through Monday.

Many events will also be taking place at the Small Craft Harbor in Gulfport, in addition to the display of

A POLITICAL FRAUD By CONGRESSMAN TRENT LOTT

5th District, Mississippi One of the most hypocritical acts of government is to give something to the people, then take it away.

That's just what would happen if House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill has his way in an effort to increase taxes by taking away a portion of the tax cut enacted into law in 1981

It would seem that the Speaker and his liberal colleagues in the House simply can't stand it when the people are allowed to keep more of their own money. They marched in lockstep last week, voting to "cap," or limit, the third year of the tax cut.

That's fancy language for raising taxes on 8.1 million American families by an average of $654 per tax return.

This tax increase, in my opinion, was ill-conceived, unfair, bad tax policy and potentially harmful to the economic recovery now taking place. Although supporters claimed it would affect only the rich, the proposal actually would hike the tax burden for millions of middle-income taxpayers, two-wageearner married couples, small businesses and family farms.

Last week's episode was one of the worst I have ever seen as the majority in the House manipulated economic policy for its own selfish, partisan motives. In short, it was a political fraud

Fortunately, there is still time for this legislation to be stopped in the Senate. And, failing that, the President has vowed to veto it.

What is also embarrassing for the Democrats in the House is that they voted to increase taxes on the same day they voted to spend more money to

News from the Governor

Requiring alcohol/drug and traffic safety education for children in kindergarten through 12th grade and in college was among recommendations submitted to Gov. William F. Winter by The Governor's Task Force on Drunk Driving at its June 28 meeting in Jackson

"When children learn about the dangers at an early age of combining drinking with driving, they tend to remember this when they become drivers," said Roy Thigpen, the governor's representative for highway safety and director of the Governor's Office of Criminal Justice Planning.

"These children, in some cases, can also influence their parents and other adults not to drive if they've been drinking," Thigpen continued. 'The task force has spent many hours since it was created last December in dealing with this most serious of all highway safety problems in Mississippi," Thigpen said.

"It's likely that many of these recommendations will be implemented, but we still need the full support of Mississippi citizens in not combining drinking and driving, not permitting relatives or friends to drive if they appear to be drunk and immediately reporting all apparent acts of drunk driving to law enforcement agencies."

Other recommendations to alleviate the drunk driving problem in Mississippi include:

-Provide all police and sheriff departments with hand-held breath test instruments to ensure testing of possible DUI offenders regardless of loca-

-Hold DUI offenders in dentention until sober or released to a sober and responsible person.

-Develop a contingency plan on the state level in case of overcrowding of jails due to the detention of DUI offenders.

-Create a separate deposit system for all Minimum Standards funds and allow year carryover of unexpended funds to ensure that all funds are expended in support of law enforcement training.

-Provide necessary funds to the State Law Enforcement Training Academy for expansion of plant, faculty and length of basic course to include optimal training in DUI enforcement.

-Provide adequate staffing of law enforcement agencies in undermanned

-- Develop a stiff and mandatory punishment scale for habitual junenile DUI offenders or remove juvenile DUI offenders from jurisdiction of the youth court.

-Raise the legal drinking age from

-Provide training for criminal justice personnel (judges, prosecutors, defense attorneys, etc.) in the area of alcohol-related problems.

—Make available to judges diagnostic assessments of first offenders. Assessments should be from those programs approved by the Division of Alcohol and Drug Abuse.

-Designate a state coordinator of alcohol drug education to plan and coordinate highway safety-related activities.

-Permit the state coordinator of alcohol/drug education and traffic safety, in conjuction with other appropriate agencies, to make suggestions on curriculum content and teacher qualifications for alcohol/drug education.

-Require a course in alcohol/drug education in teacher education curricula.

-Provide in-service education for teachers who currently have the responsibility of providing alcohol/drug educátion.

-Initiate a massive public information campaign to inform the public of the tougher DUI law.

-Require a mini course, such as The Mississippi Alcohol Safety Education Program (MASEP). -Establish a citizen's advisory committee to the Governor's Highway Safety Program on alcohol/drug preven-

-- Require drivers' license applicants to answer questions on the effects of alcohol on driving ability.

Provide information through the Governor's Highway Safety Program on the availability of portable breatn testers for public use, and mount a campaign to encourage such use.

-Encourage the development of local citizens groups against drunk

-Ask the Lay Board of Education to make alcohol/drug and traffic safety a priority issue and to allocate funds to address this issue.

-Request that standards be set by the Department of Public Safety in conjunction with the Governor's Highway Safety Program, the State Board of Health or other agencies or institutions for personnel and curriculum used in MASEP.

-Provide in-service training for MASEP instructors.

-Screen out DUI offenders assigned to MASEP to determine their instructional/treatment needs.

-Enact an Open Container Law to prohibit the presence of any open container or receptacle containing alcohol beverages in the passenger compartment of a motor vehicle.

-Make the jurisdiction of the municipal court, in levying monetary fines, coincide with that of the justice

-Consider legislation making parents or legal guardians liable for the consequences of their children's DUI offenses.

-Consider legislation requiring the impoundment of motor vehicles of drivers convicted of second or subsequent DUI offenses.

-Give the Governor's Highway Safety Program the responsibility for the overal coordination of the alcohol/drug and traffic safety program.

Allocate adequate funds to implement a comprehensive and effective alcohol/drug and traffic safety program and to follow-up on all of the recommendations from the task force. In addition to the recommendations, the task force endorsed:

-The impoundment of the vehicle driven by the DUI offender while under license revocation.

-The utilzation of roadblocks in the detection and apprehension of DUI offenders. Raising the legal age for qualifying for drivers' licensing.

-The establishment of public detoxification programs in Mississippi.

By CHARLES L. GRISWOLD It seems that few of America's war memorials have been as controversial as "The Wall," as the vets refer to the Vietnam War Memorial. I recently visited the site again, having previously attended the dedication ceremonies (Nov. 13, 1982). Enough time has elapsed since these ceremonies for reflection on the matter.

I remain convinced that the power and effect of this memorial cannot be captured on film. It is an extraordinarily moving monument, and its design is brilliant.

The two "arms" of the Wall, one of which points to the Lincol Memorial and the other to the Washington Monument, are opened in a welcoming embrace. They form a very wide "V" in a manner which tentatively suggests -almost as if to put a question to the onlooker- the famous "vic-

The arms of this "V" also very much resemble the pages of an open book, especially since the names of the dead are written on them.

Thus in contemplating the monument one is looking at a chapter of the book of American history, a book which points to the great symbols of our past (Lincoln and Washington) while recording a chapter of the recent past.

One cannot resist judging this recent chapter in the light of these symbols and all they represent. The book is open and so unfinished, and the pages which will record our future lie buried there in the hallowed American earth at the core of the Nation's Blueberries are one of the newer agricultural crops grown in Mississippi. Several varieties have performed quite well in the state.

Thanks to processing, blueberries are always in season and available year round. Fresh blueberries are in the marketplaces from late May to the end of September.

There's nothing to surpass the delicious taste of fresh home-grown blueberries as anyone who has planted blueberry bushes, now producing, will tell you.

Most southerners know about huckleberries but to many of us, the blueberry a more sophisticated member of the same berry family, is a relative stranger.

The huckleberry has 10 rather large bony seeds, while the blueberry has a large number of very small seeds seeds so tiny they are not noticed when eating the fruit. The blueberry also is more blue and is generally larger and sweeter than the huckleberry. Of the two, only blueberries are cultivated.

Blueberries are nature's convenience food. They need no peeling, coring or pitting. Only washing is required before using.

Blueberries are nutritious as well as delicious. On taste alone, these beautiful berries would win a place of favor on anybody's table. Still, it is good to know that something that tastes and looks so good is also good for you. Of all the berries, blueberries rank first in Vitamin A and second in food energy. They contain Vitamin C and iron, and suppphosphorus and potassium to

When buying fresh blueberries look for berries that are plump and full, with a light, powdery, gray-blue color.

Blueberries keep longer than any other berry when refrigerated. They are, however, highly perishable at room temperature.

Berries should not be washed until ready for use. Wet blueberries will mold. If kept dry, blueberries will maintain their goodness under refrigeration for two weeks.

Frozen blueberries are available in dry-pack or packed in syrup. The dry-pack berries can be interchanged for fresh in blueberry recipes. Since syrup-packed blueberries are sweetened, a fresh berry recipe must be adapted to allow for sugar in the pack.

Canned blueberries are sold in syrup pack, water pack and as pie filling. They are also a component in many muffin and cake mix packs. Pit filling packs have thickening agents, which make them a convenient item in pie and tart bak-

Kiln-Delisle Road damage blamed on heavy trucks

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

State and local officials reported this week that heavy trucks have caused rapid deterioration of Kiln-Delisle Road in Hancock County.

The two-lane asphalt road extends from Hwy. 603 in Kiln eastward through the Fenton Community to the Delisle Community.

James Travirca, Hancock District Five supervisor, and Lt. Ray Ladner, State Tax Commission Gulf Coast District supervisor, both said Wednesday that heavy trucks have caused the potholes and cracks which are appearing in the Hancock portion of the road.

Travirca further reported that pulpwood trucks hauling timber to a barge dock on Jourdan River in Kiln are causing the most damage.

The Sea Coast Echo has received several complaints from area residents regarding the deteriorating condition of the road.

Travirca, whose district includes a large portion of the road, noted the thoroughfare from just east of Annunciation Catholic School in Kiln eastward to the county line was widened and totally reconstructed about seven years ago in a state aid project. He said about two years he requested and the County Board of Supervisors approved reducing the individual truck weight limit to 56,700 and speed limit to 35-miles-per-hour on the road when he noticed asphalt was beginning to crumble in several areas.

Ladner reported his law officers are 'monitoring' and enforcing the county weight limit on the road.

He explained county board of supervisor action is necessary for his personnel to enforce any weight limit lower than the state's 82,420-pound maximum dicated.

Ladner reported a trucker violating the weight limit will receive a citation which must be paid to the appropriate County Justice Court.

The tax commission supervisor said the only time a truck weight can exceed the 57,700-pound limitation on the stateconstructed portion of Kiln-Delisle Road is when a hauler must use the road as a delivery access way.

Travirca reported the portion of Kiln-Delisle west of Annunciation School is strictly a county road and the Sheriff's Department should check truck weight

But Sheriff Ronald Peterson said Wednesday that he has no scale equipment to check truck weight.

Ladner said the pulpwood truck weight can exceed the county limit, but not state limit since Kiln-Delisle is the only access to the barge dock.

Travirca disagrees because he said the pulpwood trucks must travel on county roads to reach the dock.

Ladner said his officers observe that empty trucks sometimes utilize Kiln-Delisle as an east-west shortcut.

The tax commission supervisor also stated, "Overweight trucks have definitely caused the damage on Kiln-Delisle Road." He reported the state allows him six portable scales for the same number of counties in his district, so his officers can only spot check truck weights on Kiln-Delisle.

Ladner added the official maximum state weight is 80,000 pounds, but the commission allows the extra 420 pounds to allow drivers a five percent error and one percent tolerance for scale inac-

Hancock, Gulf Coast aquifer depletion study funding eyed

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

A U.S. Senate-House Conference Committee in Washington, D.C. is considering two versions of a 1984 public

The Senate version of the measure includes $300,000 for half the cost of a three-year study of shrinking Hancock County and Mississippi Gulf Coast groundwater stratas, but the House of Representatives proposal does not consider those study funds, John Perkins, press secretary for U.S. Sen. Thad Cochran of Mississippi, reported from the Capitol this week.

Charles Branch, State Department of Natural Resources Land and Water Resources Bureau director in Jackson, said Tuesday that the state will be required to provide another $300,000 for the 50-50 matching grant to fund the $600,000 project.

Perkins said the aquifer study portion of the Senate's proposal should be approved this year since U.S. Rep. Jamie Whitten of Mississippi is a Conference Committee member and Cochran sits on the Senate Appropriations Energy and Water Development Subcommit-

He reported limited studies indicate Gulf Coast groundwater levels have been dropping at a rate of two-four feet annually for the last 30-40 years.

Perkins said 'information is lacking on aquifers' along the Mississippi coast regarding 'patterns of groundwater movement.

In addition, Branch reported Gulf Coast population and industrial growth has accelerated the groundwater level depletion within the last 10 years, particularly in Jackson County where saltwater intrusion of aquifers is occur-

Branch said the study, the first of its type in this area, would definitely determine if the saltwater intrusion is the result of a natural groundwater exchange or increasing human consump-

But in Hancock the state is concerned about numerous free-flowing artesian wells in the National Space Technology Laboratories Accoustic Buffer Zone, he revealed.

These unchecked wells were left when residences, businesses and entire communities were moved from this area, roughly one-third of the county, to provide a safe accoustic buffer area for rocket testing.

Branch stated, "Anytime you see a well free flowing, a natural resource in being wasted. But we don't have a state law requiring these to be capped."

Gerald Parker, district chief of the U.S. Geological Survey office in Jackson which will conduct the aquifer study, reported Tuesday that he agreed with the water depletion rates reported by Branch and Perkins.

Parker said potable Hancock aquifers are found underground within a 2,000-foot-deep area which is probably one of the larger Gulf Coast groundwater resources, compared to Jackson County's water stratas which are about 1,000 feet deep.

"Hancock has a larger resource, but this doesn't mean it should be wasted," he warned.

Branch explained the study will hopefully provide local officials information regarding projected groundwater use and availability through the early 21st contury.

"Hopefully this will prevent a crises management situation because then it's too late." he stated.

"We are using groundwater now like it will last forever, but this is not the case at the rate we're going," Branch reported. The bureau chief said Gulf Coast aquifers are formed by rainwater falling north of this area which seeps underground to sand formations. This rainwater in many instances takes decades to reach the Gulf Coast where three primary artesion water stratas are found, Branch said.

He cited a one-year study of Lee County and Tupelo (in northeast Mississippi) aquifers found underground water sources there will be depleted in less than 20 years and then a reservoir water supply will be needed.

Parker said the proposed study will include six counties and the barrier islands in the Mississippi Gulf Coast Because of the relatively large study area the resulting information will not provide productivity information for specific wells, but will let large volume water users such as cities and industries know where the best water strata can be found, the USGS director explained.

He reported the study will form a three-dimensional mathmatical computer model of aquifers in the research

The futuristic model will be constructed based on the oldest water well drilling data compared to current information, Parker said.

The old information will be moved electronically forward in time and if the projection duplicates current data the model can be used to predict groundwater movement 10 to 20 years into the future, he explained.

"I feel confident we can reproduce groundwater movement through the year 2000," he stated.

Branch said water well drillers in Mississippi have been required to keep drilling logs which will utilized extensively to form the computer model.

He added that in Jackson some 70,000 well drilling logs from locations all over the state are available.

Parker said he hopes additional funding will allow the drilling of a 2,000-foot well on one of the barrier islands which would help provide vital information from a geological vantage point near the continental shelf.

He reported the first year of the USGS study would compile log information from the coast area.

Then current field data would be collected by monitoring existing wells at various depths to determine if the most recent log information is accurate and the best data will be programmed into a computer to build the model, Parker explained.

He described the data collection process as a 'manpower intensive' task. "We will be able to discuss in general terms the response of water resources the loan has come "due." I do on the coast with regard to general not have the money, what can types of stress resulting from usage,' I do.? A: You are liable to pay he added. back the face value of the note, plus interest. But you

Summer workshops reported

The University of Southern Mississippi Department of Industrial and Vocational Education is offering four special short term certification workshops in July.

The workshop will be July 5-20, Occupational Analysis and Course Construction from 8 a.m. until noon and History and Philosophy of Vocational Education from 1-5 p.m.

From July 21 through Aug. 10, Principles of Teaching High School will be offered in the mornings while Laboratory Organization and Management will be the afternoon workshop. Dr. John Lackey will direct both the afternoon workshops while Dr. Max Hunter will direct the occupational analysis course and Dr. Marvin Lanmon will be the principle workshop director.

Registration will be conducted at the first scheduled meeting of each class.

For more information contact Conferences and Workshops at (601) 266-4189. GULF PARK

The University of Southern Mississippi Department of Adult Education and Educational Psychology are offering two mid-summer workshops at USM-Gulf Park. The Educational Gernontology workshop, June 27-July 1 from adult education will be of benefit to the individual working with programs designed to improve the lifestyle of the older adult, according to Dr. Willie Pierce, workshop director. Teacher participating in the July 25-29 Leadership II workshop from educational psychology will cover such topics as pupil-teacher interaction, instruction in developing goals, resolving conflicts and enhancing the individuals sense of worth.

Hardy Hall will be the site of registration for both

UNISEXISM&

GOOD SENSE Congress is being pressured to pass two so-called "unisex" bills-H.R. 100 and S. 372which would prohibit insurance companies from using sex in determining rate, annuities and pensions.

While some supporters of such legislation consider their position as positive as Civil Rights—or more specifically, women's rights— the fact of maternity coverage. the matter is that such blithe to blind promotion, if successful, will actually cost U.S. women multiplied millions of dollars annually.

This is simply because women presently enjoy better $151 million. rates than men in certain forms of insurance because known factors make them better risks. Such different treatment of women and men is no different from standard underwriting practices of any insurance company of charging lower rates for brick houses than wooden ones, or for drivers over age 25 than for younger drivers who, records show, have substantially more accidents than older drivers.

The American Academy of Actuaries has estimated that auto insurance premiums charged to women drivers in the U.S. would go up by $700 million annually. This experience of Michigan in 1980 which banned sex discrimination in auto insurance rates. Michigan women's rates on auto accident insurance escalated in some age groupings by 67 to 127 percent.

According to a survey done by the Insurance Service Office in Washington, unisex tables would raise rates for a 23-year-old single woman in Hartford, Conn., by $600 per year. In Denver, the estimated increase for a similar woman could be $500.

Women would take it on the chin too on their life insurance requirements since women as a group live longer than men and rrently enjoy a lower rate scause of their natural longer longevity. A woman's life expectancy today is 77.9 years compared to men's 70.3 years. The guys and gals who out the insurance act all together correctly theorize that since women live nearly 8 years longer than men, they will pay premiums for a greater length of time and rates are adjusted according-

If unisexism prevails in life insurance dealing women can expect to increase their life insurance premium payments by $360 million annually.

A look at women's history in the health insurance industry doesn't follow the same claim cat breaks away from its pattern, but other factors owner sometime during the enter in strongly that are expected to make them pay even more in this category also in the long run.

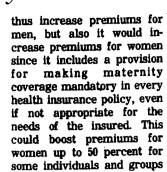

Currently, women pay higher health insurance premiums than men because women generally make more claims and see doctors more often. Unisex pricing would

From 1944 through early 1982, veterans obtained over 10.8 million GI home loans totaling $197 billion. The Veterans Administration guarantees part of a bank or other loan to help a homebuying veteran get a mortage, often with no down payment and at lower than market

Current high interest is preventing many young vets from buying a home, even with this government guarantee. Last year, a veteran needed a gross annual income of $28,000 to meet the $910 monthly payment on the average new GI loan of $54,000 at 16 percent interest.

This year VA started two programs to encourage lenders to finance more GI loans. Under the "buy-down" plan, VA will okay creative financing when the seller agrees to lower the interest rate for the first three to five years of the loan. In the "guaranteed mortgage payment" plan, VA will back loans with a down payment where monthly payments start low and rise 7.5 percent a year for the first five years.

Thus, forecasters are saying that women can expect premium increases for health insurance to climb by $16 million annually while for men it would jump by an estimated The advocates of the unisex insurance reportedly argue that the increases they would pay as described above would be balanced by ganis women would make in mandatory maternity benefits and pensions. A rebuttal, however. reminds them that many women neither need nor want maternity insurance, and their longevity also would work to a disadvantage in pension payments. Further, only 2 percent of all working women would be affected at all by such pension changes. According to the President's Commission on Pension Policy, only 39 percent of all women in the work force are covered by estimated is backed up by the pension plans and 95 percent of these already are covered.

THREE IN A ROW-For the first time, nearly completed Space Shuttle external tanks are worked on side-by-side at the NASA Michoud Assembly Facility in New Orleans, La. Martin Marietta, the tank manufacturer, is ahead of the production schedule. Eight additional tanks are in various stages of assembly at the Michoud factory and three completed tanks are at the Kennedy Space Center in Florida being prepared for Shuttle launches this year. Martin Marietta is increasing external tank production rates to meet higher Shuttle launch rates. By 1988, the company will reach production rates of 24 tanks per year. # Vacations are for people, leave the pets at home here, and although vacations are fun for most of the family. there's one member who does not enjoy them: the family • Don't allow a pet to travel

Dog and cat owners often assume that because they enjoy seeing new places, their dogs and cats do too, said Wildlife Specialist Ross (Skip) Shelton of the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service. If they could talk, the animals would tell owners differently. New sights, sounds, smells and surroundings spell danger to animals, and a journey to an unfamiliar spot is an unsettling experience for "It is a particularly poor idea to take your cat on vacation," Shelton said. "A dog, if it is trained, will at least return when it's called, but cats are not inclined to obey their owners, and most are not leash-trained. All too often a vacation and vanishes forever." And that makes for an unhappy vacation for everybody involved. It is far better for a vacationing family to leave its pets at home and have a neighbor care for them, Shelton said. The second best alternative is to put the pets in a boarding kennel. Only as a last resort should the pets be taken along on the vacation.

Summer vacation time is there are a few ways to make the pets more comfortable. and the vacation more enjoyable.

> with its head thrust out a car window. The pet's eyes can be injured by gravel or bugs, or become irritated when the wind dries them out.

> On hot days provide chipped ice for the pet. This provides moisture without loading the animal's stomach with water.

Check with a veterinarian about rables innoculations and health certificates required before the pet will be allowed into other states or foreign countries.

Ask the veterinarian for a motion sickness preventive for the pet.

Feed the pet in the evening, after the day's travel is over, and try not the change the GREAT VIBES pet's diet. Take along a favorite toy or bone to prevent boredom.

out a window and hang itself.

If the animal must be placed in a crate, be sure it is made of wire to allow for adequate ventilation and is big enough for the animal to stand and turn comfortably. Avoid transporting animals in the trunk of a car, and if it is necessary be sure the trunk is secured at least partially open. This will prevent asphyxiation, heatstroke and carbon monoxide poisoning.

Exercise and water the animal frequently, and never leave an animal in a car without proper ventilation. Temperatures in a closed car will reach lethal limits within minutes on a hot summer day.

"Training like this may one day be responsible for saving the life of one of our officers,' the sheriff stated.

"One of our biggest problems in Hancock County may be drug trafficking, and the people involved in that kind of criminal activity are notoriously ruthless and invariably well armed," the sheriff explained.

"In addition, this kind of training and firearms qualification could be the first line of defense if an officer should face a damage suit as a result of using his weapons in the line of duty," the sheriff continued.

"Proficiency in the use of firearms is absolutely essential for the law enforcement officer these days," the sheriff feels.

State Troopers to ticket three-wheelers

Col. Donald Butler has issued a warning to owners of three-wheeled motorcycles that the vehicles cannot be legally operated on streets, roads and highways in Mississippi.

"We have issued orders to our troopers to write tickets to the operators of any threewheeler on the highways and told our officers to take reasonable measures to get these vehicles off the roads,' Butler said.

The Highway Patrol crackdown comes in response to reports of increased accidents involving the vehicles and the recent deaths of two children who were operating three-wheelers.

"These vehicles are not designed for or suited for use on a street, road or highway," Butler said. "They do not meet the requirements a road vehicle must meet under state

"We are receiving a greater number of complaints from the motoring public and from physicians about the use of these off-the-road cycles on highways, and we are taking firm action against them."

Three-wheeler drivers may be cited for operating a motor vehicle without a license, operating a vehicle without a safety inspection sticker, operating under the minimum speed limits, speeding, operating without a license plate or operating without a helmet, depending on which charges are applicable.

Butler said three-wheelers are classified under state law as motorcycles and are required to satisfy several standards. "None of the units on the market today meet these requirements.

These vehicles are dangerous in the hands of young people who have no driver training," the colonel "Doctors reported treating area last year. 92 injuries in 1982 at one hospital alone caused by riding three-wheelers.

"Parents should be cautious before allowing a youngster to operate one of these vehicles and should warn them to never take the three-wheeler onto a street, road or highway," Butler said.

At a northeast Mississippi hospital an emergency room administrative employee said that on Father's Day in 1982 a minister's son was killed when the three-wheeler he was driving crashed into a tree. The boy was nine years old.

"I wish they would outlaw them," the hospital employee said. "I didn't realize the dangers involved in the use of three-wheelers until I started working in the trauma unit here. I see how frequently people are injured as a result of facilities is combined with records kept on motorcycle accidents, making it difficult to obtain accurate statistics.

An assistant administrator of a Gulf Coast hospital cited a case in 1982 of a 70-year-old man whose driver license had been revoked. Since he couldn't drive a car without his license, the man used a three-wheeler to get around.

According to the assistant, the man was in the woods on his three-wheeler when it turned over backward and landed on top of its driver.

The man spent several nights in the neuro-intensive care unit with severe head injuries.

"Skull, neck and back injuries are mainly what we treat as the result of threewheeler accidents." the assistant administrator said.

A quick, random survey of hospitals throughout the state showed frequent emergency room treatment is administered to farmers involved in three-wheeler accidents.

A hospital facility spokesman in the Mississippi Delta said last year an area farmer was killed when the three-wheeler he was driving flipped over. He said the hospital often treats small children injured when they are thrown off while riding as

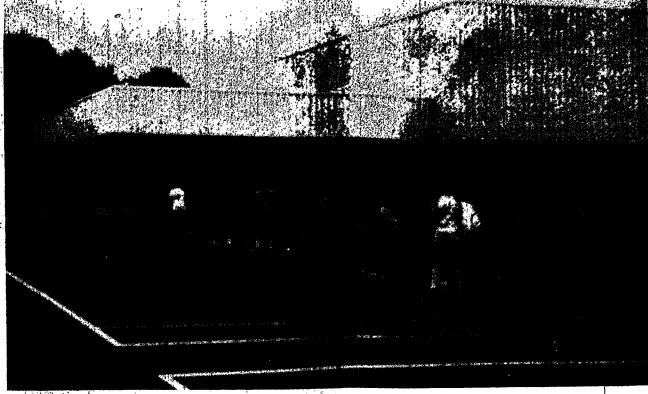

A west Mississippi hospital administrator said his facility treats between 10 and 15 threewheeler accident victims each year with the majority occurring during the summer mon-

In classifying the extent of injuries produced in threewheeler accidents, the administrator said, "They range from minor bruises, abrasions, lacerations and broken bones to loss of limbs and

'One weekend about three weeks ago we treated four three-wheeler injuries in one day," the director said.

"The vehicles can be operated safely and can be both fun and beneficial to farmers and land owners with large acreage to cover but they have no business on a street, road or highway and should be used with care

Cheerleading clinic planned

Mississippi College and the Mississippi Association of Coaches will again sponsor an All-Star Cheerleader clinic in connection with high school All-Star Week August 2-6.

Cheerleading instruction will be under the direction of the National Cheerleaders Association of Dallas, Tx. At the end of the five-camp, eight top squads chosen by the NCA staff will lead cheers at the All-Star basketball game.

Resident participant cost for the clinic is $90, which includes all lodging, meals, instruction and insurance. Transportation and admission will be provided to the All-Star basketball games for both resident and day-only participants. Day only participant cost is $50.

Mississippi college, the camp will be directed by Mrs. Cheryl Moss, instructor of physical education at the college. Mrs. Moss is the sponsor for the Mississippi College cheerleading squad and is a member of the Mississippi Association of Health, Physical Education, and

According to Mrs. Moss, cheerleading squads who attend can "expect the very best instruction available from? highly trained staff of male and female cheerleaders, pom pon girls, and gymastics, along with lots of new cheers and chants."

Low sodium shopping and cooking need not be dull. If most cases, from 1,900 to 5,600 tional Academy of Sciences. you are cutting back on salt. there are ways to reduce the amount of sodium in your diet and still enjoy flavorful foods. Try some of these ideas:

Read labels to look for products with lower sodium content. Brands vary on the amount of sodium added to foods.

2. Start to eliminate the salt you add at the table a little bit at a time. Look for salt in recipes you prepare at home and cut it out. You really do not need to salt the cooking water for vegetables, macaroni, rice and other foods.

3. Think about doing more scratch cooking. Bake your own cakes, cookies and quick breads using sodium-free baking soda and powder, which are available in some pharmacies and food stores carrying special diet foods. Try making your own catsup, mayonnaise and salad dressings without salt.

When possible, eat more frésh or plain frozen vegetables (without sauces), and vegetables canned without salt in place of regular canned vegetables.

St Season foods with herbs, spices, lemon juice and saltfree garlic and onion powders. Many prepared seasonings contain added sodium: Celery salt, garlic salt, onion salt, catsup, chili sauce and powder, commercial boullion. meat and vegetable extracts, wine (salt has been added).

You can add flavor to your food without adding salt. Spice up your meals using your imagination in cooking and be willing to experiment with a few new herbs and spices.

Think fresh. A drop of lemon juice can perk up the flavor of many toods. Or try rubbing fresh cut ginger root on meat before barbequing. Fresh garlic also adds zest to foods. Common herbs and spices you probably have on your kitup hundreds of different foods. Here are some flavorful mat-

HELF FOR LATE CROPS Our soybean crop in Hancock County is generally off to a poor start this year. All the neavy rain we received earlier has hurt some stands and others are questionable. We will have to make some adjustments and do what we can to get the crop in.

In growing soybeans or any other crop, no two years are just alike. We can, however, look back to 1973 for a comparison. That year soybean plantings were delayed across the state and we ended up planting more acres than the year before and making average yields.

And if we look at 1979 the date of planting recommendations. In 1979, 53 percrop was planted after June 10 yields. and yet we harvested a record high yield of 29 bushels per cost item, the figures show it acre.

by D. J. HERDA

Don't get me wrong. I have nothing personal against the Boy Scouts of America. Their motto, "Be Prepared," makes a lot of sense.

But sometimes being prepared simply isn't enough. Especially when you're trying to get that truly first-class photograph.

How, for example, can you anticipate the unanticipated? How can you expect the unexpected? It's easy enough to prepare yourself to take some posed photos of the wife and kids, of hubby practicing putting on the living room rug, of Aunt Mabel and Uncle Fred dropping by for their weekly

But how can you be prepared for the eagle flying overhead? Or a tree crashing to the forest floor?

I was out in the woods the other day, pretending to be bow hunting, when I received the surprise of my life.

There I was, huddled in front of a large shrub pile deep in the woods, when suddenly I heard a tremendous racket behind me.

I couldn't see past the pile, so I wasn't sure what was hap-pening, but I could hear. Oh, could I hear. It sounded something like a freight train tearing across the leafcovered forest floor.

I thought for a brief, horrifying moment that a rut-crazed buck had caught scent of me and for some reason was about to crash right through the shrub pile. In an instant I would be skewered on the ends of his antlers. And me without my camera to record the event for posterity!

Imagine my surprise when my peripheral vision caught sight of something winging overhead. At the same instant, the beast on the ground came slamming into the shrub pile, only to stop mere inches from my tense and quivering frame.

There, eyeball to eyeball, I sat looking into the horrified face of a young cottontail. And in the tree just above me, an owl lighted, screeched his discontent, and then just as quickly, just as silently stole would have had some absolutely fantastic nature photos.

I couldn't believe it. Had

Be Prepared -- To "Fake It"

The rabbit, too scared to move, spent the next 20minutes keeping me company. Now, how can you be prepared for something like

Of course, you can't. So what do you do? How do you get those really classy shots? Well, you can try being in the right spot at the right time (and praying doesn't hurt, either). Or you can cheat.

Admittedly, setting up a shot of an owl chasing a rabbit across the forest floor would be tricky, at best. But there are other "natural" shots which are much easier to fake. For years I was fascinated with the lumpy-skinned toughness of the common American toad. I stumbled across enough of them in the wild, but they were never what I'd call cooperative when it came to my photographing them.

The day I stopped being 'prepared" for just the right shot of a toad and began scheming to fake it was the day I got the shot I wanted.

First, I set up camera and lights in my darkroom. I sprinkled a little water on a countertop and propped a my bow been a camera, I dark piece of cardboard up against the wall to act as a suitable background. Then I went out and captured a toad (I happened to know one was residing beneath a board in the backyard).

Toads being relatively slowmoving creatures, the task of shooting over the next 30 minutes or so proved relatively easy. And the results: a shot few nature photographers could tell wasn't real. A closeup lens and a shallow depth-of-field helped. So be prepared....to fake it.

Scenes from Bayou Cadet Fleet blessing

The Annual Blessing of the Shrimping Fleet sponsored by Gulf Fishermen, Inc. and the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce was held Sunday at Bayou Cadet.

The overall winner was Miss Jackie with Boo Noto, skipper.

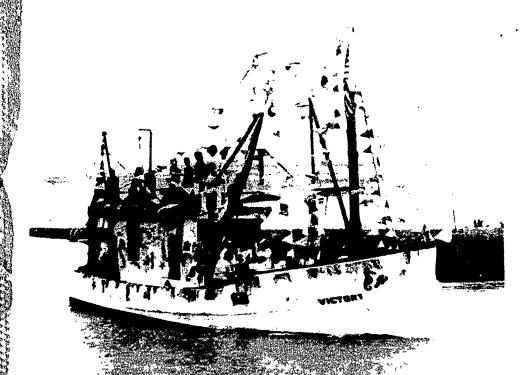

Miss Jackie also captured first place in the under 35-foot category; Pam No. 2, Marshall Strong, captain, was second; and third was Miss Christy, E.J. Ladner, captain.

In the 35-foot and above catagoey, Victory with Bubby Erskine, captain, was selected first; second, Karen Gail, Jimmy Engersoll, captain; and third, Delta Dawn, Billy Bernos, captain.

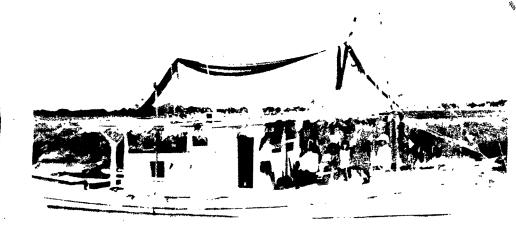

The commercial and pleasure craft were blessed by Rev. Lambert Stack, pastor of St. Ann's Catholic Church, Clermont Harbor, and St. John's Catholic Church, Lakeshore.

Everyone knows that hot dogs and hamburgers are standard fare at cook-outs because tuna or chicken salad made with mayonnaise will kill you on a hot summer day. Everyone is wrong.

Mayonnaise contains a large amount of vinegar, lime and/or lemon juice. That, along with a salt-in-water concentration of about nine percent, makes for an inhospitable environment for harmful bacteria.

Several studies have shown that Salmonella and Staphylococcus aureus, two common food poisoning bacteria, actually die in

TRAINING DOGS

When it comes to dogs, Barbara Woodhouse undoubtedly knows her business. In the "Guinness Book of Records" she appears as the world's top dog trainer - a title wellearned over the years with more than 17,000 dogs brought to heel by her special, quick method of training.

She demonstrates her skill in "Training Dogs the Woodhouse Way" at 7:30 p.m., Tuesdays, beginning July 5, on the Mississippi ETV Network.

Not content with training just dogs, she also concerns herself with training their owners-but these she finds altogether more troublesome. She believes that, unless a dog is mentally deficient, there is no such thing as an untrainable dog. Inexperienced owners, however, are a less rare bree.

She can train a dog in about six minutes but finds it takes longer with some owners. She is apt to scold them-the owners that is-mercilessly, but with the dogs it is praise not punishment that she uses as her most effective toll. They respect the authority in her voic, and the rest seems to follow naturally
